Dr. Matthew Bennett

The Battle of Frigidus (394) and the Fall of the Roman Empire

*The lecture is a part of the »Scientific evenings« cycle of lectures.
It will take place on Thursday, 19 April 2012 at 7PM at the mansion Zemono near Vipava.
The moderator will be Prof. Ddr. Igor Grdina.*

Explanations for the Fall of the Roman Empire are numerous and much debated. The battle of the Cold River exemplifies many of the factors that led its collapse in the West. The battle is seen as the triumph of Christianity over paganism, but the divided empire did not long survive Theodosius' victory. The reasons were structural and strategic, but also tactical and meteorological.

Kindly invited!
