TUTORIAL SYSTEM OF EDUCATION AT THE UNIVERSITY OF NOVA GORICA

University of Nova Gorica has a tutorial system of education. This enables students to choose one of their professors as their tutor. This normally happens towards the end of the first semester of study, or any time later. The chosen tutor supervises the student throughout the study period, until the diploma thesis, when the role of the tutor is taken by the mentor of the diploma thesis.

Each student agrees with his tutor individually as to how the tutorial process will take place, depending on the needs of the student. A tutor gives advice to students in case there are any study difficulties or if students want to upgrade their level of knowledge within the study programme.

To ensure quality supervision, a university professor may supervise as a tutor only two students simultaneously. Students may consult their dean concerning the choice of a most suitable tutor, and at the same time they may seek further advice at the Schools' offices.
